DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 10, 11, and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Iwata et al. (USPN 6899638).

Regarding claim 10, Iwata et al. discloses a golf club head comprising a faceplate having a contoured rear surface wherein the contoured rear surface includes a central thickened region having a non-circular, elliptical outer edge surrounded by a transition region tapering from the central thickened region toward a thinner peripheral region wherein the transition region also has an elliptical outer edge (See Column 14, lines 3 through 55 and Table 7 and Figure 8). Based on Table 7, the faceplate inherently has a outer edge of the central thickened region having an aspect ratio that is greater than the aspect ration of the elliptical outer edge of the transition region being that the major and miner axes of the central thickened region are 10mm and 5mm respectively, and the major and minor axes of the transition region (tapered region) are 15mm and 10mm respectively (wherein the distance of the central thickened region is factored in). Based on the above the aspect ratio of the central thickened region is 2 and the aspect ratio of the transition region is 1.5.

Regarding claim 11, Iwata et al. discloses the elliptical outer edge of the central thickened region having a first major axis and a first minor axis and the elliptical outer edge of the transition region has a second major axis and a second minor axis wherein the second major axis being equal to the first major axis plus a predetermined distance and the second minor axis being equal to the first minor axis plus a predetermined distance (See Column 14, lines 3 through 55).

Regarding claim 14, Iwata et al. discloses the club head further comprising a shell having an opening and the faceplate being attached to the opening in the shell to form a hollow body (See Figures 95-97).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 12 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Iwata et al. (USPN 6899638).

Regarding claim 12 and 13, Iwata et al. does not disclose the dimensions as set forth by the applicant. One having ordinary skill in the art would have found the lengths of the minor and major axes of the central thickened region and the transition region to be an obvious matter of design choice. Iwata et al. is geared to reducing off-center shots. Furthermore, Iwata et al. designs the face based on the areas on a club head wherein a golf ball is most struck. The major and minor axes of Iwata et al. would perform equally as well as that of the applicant.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 10-14 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Though a new ground of rejection has been made, the new ground of rejection was necessitated by the interview summary and the remarks with regards to the aspect ratio.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
